On the occasion of Deimantas Narkevičius's show at Museo Marino Marini, Lo Schermo dell'Arte Film Festival (which will be held in Florence from Nov. 13-17, 2013), dedicates its section Focus On to the Lithuanian artist and director's work. Five of his films will be presented, in which, through his use of found footage and documentaries, a vision of history emerges, influenced by subjective memories, with particular attention paid to the social development of Soviet Europe.

On Sat. November 16, the artist will give a lecture at Museo Marino Marini (3:45 p.m.), followed by a screening of his films, The Role of a Lifetime (2003), Once in the XX Century (2004), Revisiting Solaris (2007), The Dud Effect (2008), at Cinema Odeon. On Sunday November 17, (once again at the Odeon) his film Restricted Sensation (2011) will be presented; in which for the first time, the artist makes use of a screenplay and the techniques of fiction to tell the story of a young aspiring theater director in Vilnius who gets pushed away from his job on the suspicion that he's homosexual.
